Hi George,

Thank you for the update on your meeting with ARCADIS. Once all of the data has been collected and evaluated, the next step is the revised risk characterization. As you are aware, a preliminary plan to move forward was discussed previously. Based on the preliminary data currently available, this approach continues to be appropriate and on track to produce a revised BERA work plan. The invitation to utilize the USFWS facilities to host a meeting is appreciated. I will keep this location in mind for potential meetings. Also, please feel free to contact me should you need any additional information regarding site activities.

Regards,

Tanya

Hi Tanya,

Last week's meeting went well.

One topic discussed was the upcoming BERA and associated work plan. It was my understanding that a scoping meeting between Arcadis and EPA is not scheduled. In my experience, I have found such meetings to be extremely helpful in getting an overall consensus regarding the general approach and study design which helps move the process along more quickly and efficiently.

Completely up to you, but my feelings is such a meeting will be beneficial in keeping things on track.

If EPA agrees, and a meeting is held, FWS would like to be included. We're also more than happy to host the meeting at the refuge Headquarters or Visitor Center. Both buildings are only a 15 minute drive to the site in case participants should feel the need for a site walk.

Let me know what you think, and if you would like to discuss further.

Thanks
